"It started off as a friendship and turned into something more," Raquel says of her affair with Tom.

"Acting has always been a dream of hers," shares a source. "Now Ariana is focused on that and can block out anything to do with her cheating ex."

Ariana GETS THE LAST LAUGH!

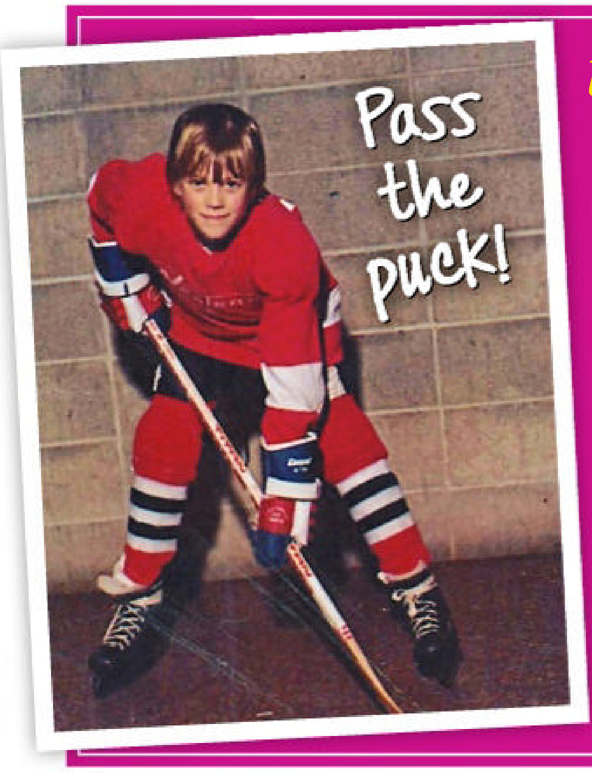
Success is the best revenge? Vanderpump Rules star Ariana Madix has landed a role in a new Lifetime movie less than a month after it was revealed that Tom Sandoval cheated on her with co-star Raquel Leviss. Per Deadline, the flick is titled Buying Back My Daughter, and the 37-year-old will feature as a police officer alongside Meagan Good. "Ariana couldn't be more grateful," says a source. "It's just what she needed." The reality TV veteran's life imploded in early March when she discovered that her partner of nine years, Tom, 40, and pal Raquel, 28, had been having a months-long affair behind her back. She split from her Fancy AF Cocktails co-author soon after. "To say I have been devastated and broken is an understatement," Ariana — who owns a $2 million home with Tom in LA — shared of the "betrayal." Castmates have rallied around the blond beauty, and Tom and Raquel have both issued public and private mea culpas. "We talked on the phone, and I apologized to her over text," Raquel said in a March 22 interview, noting that "a lot of people are angry" over the infidelity. "But she didn't receive it very well." That's no surprise. In a post-scandal Instagram, Ariana declared: "What doesn't kill me better run." "This movie part is helping her get the last laugh," says the source. "Everyone is rooting for Ariana."

DWTS SHAKE-UP!

Ratings declined during Tyra's tenure on the show. "She never felt the love from fans," says a source, but "they adore Julianne."

SHE'S IN!
SHE'S OUT!

Tyra Banks' dancing days are over! Julianne Hough is replacing the supermodel, 49, as co-host of Dancing With the Stars. "The energy is magnetic every time you step foot in the ballroom," gushed the former pro, 34, who will be emceeing the Disney+ competition alongside another alum: Alfonso Ribeiro. "And I can't wait to feel it again." Days prior to the announcement, Tyra revealed that she was leaving the show after just three seasons. She famously took over following fan-favorite Tom Bergeron's shocking 2019 ouster but failed to find her footing, announcing the wrong couple during a Season 29 elimination and flubbing names. "Tyra never felt like she completely fit in at DWTS, and even though it wasn't her decision, fans blamed her for Tom's getting fired," a source admits. "Bottom line, she was more than ready to go."



Pass the puck!

JOSH DUHAMEL

Despite playing hockey as a kid, the North Dakota native still felt like "Bambi out on the ice" while filming Mighty Ducks: Game Changers. "I was using muscles I hadn't used forever," Josh said. "Literally, the first day we went out there to skate, after about 20 minutes, I skated off the ice, found a garbage can, and just hurled."

Hugh's RUDE 'TUDE

Playing a handsome cad in the movies isn't much of a stretch for Hugh Grant, it appears. A clip of the British actor, 62, rolling his eyes went viral after he refused to engage in the usual what-are-you-wearing banter with Ashley Graham on the Oscars red carpet on March 12. The very next day, Wired released a video interview with Hugh, in which he disses Drew Barrymore's voice in their 2007 rom-com Music and Lyrics. "I don't think she'd mind me saying her singing is just horrendous," he said. "I've heard dogs bark better than she sings." While the actress, 48, found her former co-star's comments "absolutely funny," she did sympathize with Ashley, 35. "The person that [she] met on that carpet is the real Hugh," Drew dished. "You think you're getting this charming movie star, and what you get is grumpy Hugh."

"Hugh has always been a curmudgeon, but he's taking his crankiness to a whole new level," says a source. "He seems to be getting worse with age."

EGO ALERT!

Jenna's DIVA ANTICS

With a snap of her fingers! Jenna Ortega was so unhappy with the Wednesday scripts that she decided to take them into her own hands. "Everything that she does, everything that I had to play, did not make sense for her character at all," the actress, 20, sniped on Dax Shepard's podcast, Armchair Expert. "There were times on that set where I even became unprofessional, in a sense, where I just started changing lines." While Jenna insisted that she's simply "protective" of Wednesday, publicly criticizing the writers was not the way to go, warns a source. "Wednesday put Jenna on the map," the source notes. "Now, she's being compared to Katherine Heigl, whose career suffered after she slighted the Grey's Anatomy writers room."

"I have no problem using my voice," Jenna admitted of the "battles" she faced while filming Wednesday.

"It's like a death and a rebirth," Gisele said of her divorce from Tom, with whom she shares Benjamin, 13, and Vivian, 10, and had co-parented 15-year-old Jack — his son with ex Bridget Moynahan.

Marriages aren't built, or broken, overnight, Gisele told Vanity Fair: "That takes years to happen."

Gisele BREAKS HER SILENCE

Starting over! In a new interview with Vanity Fair, Gisele Bündchen opens up about her shocking 2022 divorce from Tom Brady. "It's tough because you imagine your life was going to be a certain way, and you did everything you could, you know?" she said, tearing up. "You give a hundred percent of yourself, and it's heartbreaking when it doesn't end up the way you hoped for, and worked for, but you can only do your part." The supermodel, 42, went on to share that Tom's decision to un-retire from the NFL last year was merely "one piece of a much larger puzzle," and that they simply grew apart. "As time goes by, we realize that we just wanted different things," Gisele said. "That doesn't mean you don't love the person. It just means that in order for you to be authentic and truly live the life that you want to live, you have to have somebody who can meet you in the middle, right?" While Gisele continues to root for Tom, 45, — "I want him to achieve and to conquer," she insisted — it's time for her to pursue her own dreams. "I don't want to be limited," declared Gisele. "I want to spread my wings and fly."

Harry's HOT NEW ROMANCE!

Olivia who? Less than four months after splitting from his Don't Worry Darling director, Olivia Wilde, 39, Harry Styles, 29, has moved on — with Australian fashion blogger and influencer Yan Yan Chan, 28. The pair were recently spotted together in Byron Bay amid the singer's Down Under concert tour. "They began dating in February after he slid into her DMs," spills a source. "She's a lot of fun and seems much more relaxed than Olivia." While the actress was embroiled in headline-making feuds with Florence Pugh and Shia LaBeouf, as well as a custody battle against ex Jason Sudeikis, during their almost two-year relationship, "there isn't any drama with Yan Yan," shares the source. "She's a breath of fresh air for Harry."

Adele's WEDDING JITTERS

Here comes the...diva! Adele has become "a bit of a Bridezilla" while planning her upcoming nuptials to Rich Paul, admits a source. "She has a wedding planner, but she can't help herself," the source says of the singer, 34. "She's freaking out about the aesthetics of the decorations — she's worried about the color schemes she's picked out matching the flowers." Just like when she delayed her Las Vegas residency because it wasn't living up to standards, "Adele wants everything to be perfect. It's consuming her," reveals the source, adding that while the sports agent, 41, wants to help, "he knows better than to get involved."

To this day, Taylor and Joe have not walked a red carpet together — despite his winning a Grammy for contributions to her folklore album. "Joe and I really love sad songs," she's said. "We've always bonded over music."

TAYLOR Happy at Last

After years of highs and lows, Taylor Swift's career and personal life are finally both thriving at the same time

Shake It Off

Getting to a place of contentment took work for Taylor. "Happiness is always going to be a struggle," she's declared, "and a challenge we have to try and meet."

She outdid herself. Taylor Swift kicked off the sixth tour of her career — her first concert trek in five years — in Arizona on March 17, leaving fans and critics blown away. Rolling Stone lauded the singer-songwriter's Eras Tour as a "3-hour career-spanning victory lap." The Atlantic said she "conjured actual magic," while The Guardian crowned her the genre's "hardest-working star." Across social media, the tour was hailed as an absolute triumph, as well.

But that's just the cherry on top. Taylor has enjoyed a wildly accomplished career since she released her first album as a teenager, including becoming the first woman to win three Album of the Year Grammys. And now, nearly 17 years after she started releasing music — following public humiliation, headline-making heartbreak and an epic battle with her old record label — she's achieved the same level of success in her private life. "Taylor's on top of the world professionally and personally. It wasn't always the case, but she feels that she's in the healthiest mental state she's ever been in," says a source. "She looks back at the toxic moments and feels grateful that she survived them so that she could finally be this happy."

BEGIN AGAIN

She owes a huge part of her joy and contentment to the man she's loved for the past six years. When Taylor, 33, fell for English actor Joe Alwyn, 32, in 2016, she was struggling — fresh off failed romances with DJ-producer Calvin Harris and actor Tom Hiddleston and still reeling from a very public feud with rapper Kanye West, 45, who bullied her and accused her of lying after she denied approving a lyric in Ye's song "Famous" that branded her "that b----." The mass public shaming that followed, "with millions of people saying you are quote-unquote canceled, is a very isolating experience," Taylor's said.

Joe helped her heal. He also backed her when she sued a former radio DJ for battery and sexual assault — and faced him in court in 2017, winning her case — after accusing the man of groping her at a 2013 meet-and-greet. "Taylor quickly realized Joe was everything she'd been looking for in a partner. He's confident, strong, doesn't judge her, and is always encouraging her to be herself and move out of her comfort zone," adds the source. "Joe's love changed everything. She feels safe with him."

Amid Joe's support, she took stock of her priorities. "Taylor sought therapy," says the source, and focused on her health, revealing in 2019 that she'd started using the supplement L-theanine "to help with stress and anxiety." Taylor also made sure she only surrounded herself "with good people who don't have an agenda," shares the source, "which meant cutting ties with many who didn't have her back. She blocked out the hate on social media, too. It would just take up space in her head."

That's all behind her now. But she still some-

She Knows How to Put On a Show!

Fans were treated to 44 songs off Taylor's 10 albums during her Eras stadium tour debut concert on March 17. She wore 16 custom looks, by Roberto Cavalli, Oscar de la Renta, Christian Louboutin, Versace and more amid a 192-minute set. On hand to witness the stage magic? Stars including Selena Gomez, Emma Stone, Laura Dern and NFL player JJ Watt, who declared it "a spectacle to behold."

times finds herself looking back on what she's learned from exes like John Mayer, Jake Gyllenhaal and Harry Styles. "She remembers a few good things and a lot of bad, but she feels they've all made her a stronger person," says the source. "Taylor has let go of her resentments. Her big aha moment came when she realized she didn't need to please everyone or care what they think of her."

Taylor's realization hasn't stopped her, however, from plotting fresh ways to delight fans. Her latest tour is said to be littered with Easter eggs — including hints that her next rerecorded album release will be Speak Now (Taylor's Version). "I love to communicate through Easter eggs," she's said. "I think the best messages are cryptic ones."

WHAT'S NEXT

She's in a great place. "Her career is thriving, she's doing it her way, she's in love with a good man — all that's left is marriage and babies," says the source, noting that there have been whispers — including from Instagram gossip account Deux Moi on March 22 — claiming that notoriously private Taylor and Joe have already quietly tied the knot. More than a decade ago, Taylor confessed that she wanted to someday have "a bunch of [kids] running around, minimum four."

Don't be surprised, says the source, if Joe makes that dream come true after Taylor's sold-out tour ends and she directs her first feature-length film — which she also wrote — in a new career milestone that was announced last December. "It's been a long road to happiness," says the source, "but Taylor's finally found it." L&S

Amanda's SAD SETBACK

Once again, Amanda Bynes publicly dealing with mental Fans were left feeling disappointed Two months after revealing that Amanda Bynes would be appearing as a special guest at 90s Con — a nostalgia-filled fan convention in Connecticut — organizers announced on March 17 that the All That alum was no longer attending due to a mystery illness. "Send a prayer," co-star Kel Mitchell, 44, instructed the crowd, while their onetime castmate Kenan Thompson, also 44, filled in for her at the last minute on the show's panel.

But no one could have imagined just how dire the situation was for Amanda. On March 19, the former Nickelodeon star was found naked and alone, wandering the streets of LA. After flagging down a passing car, Amanda, 36, reportedly told the driver that she'd experienced a psychotic episode before then calling 911 herself. She was later placed on an involuntary psychiatric hold.

"It's heartbreaking that Amanda has had such a setback," says an insider, noting the unsettling incident occurred almost exactly a year after her conservatorship — which went into place following a 2013 mental health crisis — was terminated by a judge. "Sadly, she's been down this road before."

OFF THE RAILS

Last time, Amanda's mother, Lynn Bynes, 75, took control of the actress' life following a series of arrests, car accidents and social media outbursts. Amanda — who's admitted she was abusing drugs at the time and once claimed to have been diagnosed with bipolar disorder — also set fire to a stranger's driveway.

Her recent erratic behavior went mostly unnoticed for days, though. On March 15, the celeb's car was allegedly towed in Long Beach, Calif., with Amanda accepting rides from strangers and eventually being spotted on the streets of Hollywood looking confused over the next 72 hours.

"She went off her meds again, which can cause all kinds of problems," the insider explains. "No one is sure what triggered her, but something clearly set Amanda off."

Aside from her mom and father, Rick Bynes, 77, she doesn't have many people in her corner, according to the insider. "Her circle is small," says the insider, "so there's not a lot of people to hold her accountable."

A bright spot? Amanda

It's Been a Year of Ups and Downs

March 2022

With the support of her parents, Amanda ended the conservatorship that controlled her life for nine long years.

April 2022

Police were called to Amanda's California home following a nasty dispute between her and then-fiancé Paul Michael.

July 2022

After breaking up and then reconciling, Amanda and Paul ended things for good. He claims the two are "friends now."

October 2022

"A fresh start! In cosmetology college to become a manicurist," she shared last year.

Lost Hours

TMZ reported that Amanda may have been living on the streets of LA for days prior to her hospitalization.

herself was the one to recognize she needed help. "She's embarrassed by what happened," shares the insider, who says there are no plans at the moment to reinstate her conservatorship. "Hopefully Amanda will put some precautions in place that will prevent this from happening again. She's safe now, but it could have been a lot worse." L&S

Before news broke of her spiral, Amanda mysteriously pulled out of 90s Con, where she was appearing with the All That cast.

Picking Up the Pieces

"Amanda is looking at this as a hiccup," an insider says of the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising graduate's March breakdown. "It's sad and regrettable, but she'll learn from it."

Blood Brood
Charles maintains a close relationship with Camilla's children — food writer and critic Tom and art curator Laura — as well as their offspring. "It creates an unspoken awkwardness with his own kin," dishes a source.

Camilla's TAKI THE

March 19 marked the first U.K. Mother's Day since Queen Elizabeth II passed away at age 96 in September. In remembrance, the royal family's Twitter account shared a throwback photo of the monarch with King Charles III as a baby, as well as a shot of Queen Consort Camilla alongside her own late mom, Rosalind Shand. "To all mothers everywhere, and to those who may be missing their mums today, we are thinking of you," the caption read.

Family has seemingly been on Camilla's mind a lot lately — especially when it comes to doling out regal privileges. As the born-and-bred Windsors continue to war among themselves, Life & Style's learned that the 75-year-old is attempting to push her biological brood to the royal forefront. Camilla's grown children with ex-husband Andrew Parker Bowles — Tom Parker Bowles, 48, and Laura Lopes, 45 — "already get a lot of perks because of their mother, but she's been flexing her newfound power," spills a source. "There's even talk of giving them apartments at either Buckingham Palace or Kensington Palace, or a different royal property altogether. Some say Camilla is slowly but surely icing out Charles' family. Everyone is questioning if this was her plan all along."

A CORONATION PLOT

The situation certainly isn't sitting well with heir to the throne Prince William, 40, and his wife, Princess Kate, 41. "Camilla became more conniving after receiving her queen escort title," alleges the source. "They have their guard up."

And with the king's May 6 coronation approaching, tensions are only growing. "The buzz is that Camilla's five teen grandchildren will be part of the ceremony with Charles," says the source. "She wants them to be just as visible as William and Kate's kids."

Unhappy Heirs

First-in-line to the throne with son George behind him, William is "livid" Camilla is inserting her relatives into royal matters, says the source: "The power struggles within the palace never end."

Family NG OVER PALACE?!

As she settles into the role of queen consort, King Charles III's wife is ensuring her loved ones get plenty of regal perks

Prince George, 9, Princess Charlotte, 7, and Prince Louis, 4, are, at the very least, expected to be part of a procession at Westminster Abbey. "Camilla isn't that close to them — mostly because William has made it clear that she is not his children's step-grandmother," notes the source. "That's another reason why Camilla is eager for Tom and Laura to be added to all family affairs."

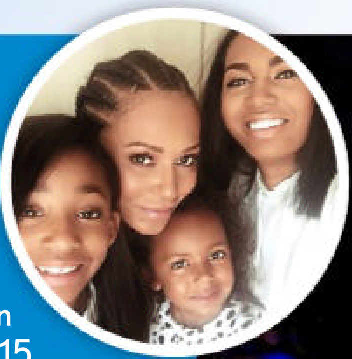
But according to the source, William wants Charles, 74, to put his foot down. "He thinks his father should stand up to her," says the source. "Though William is upset with Camilla's scheming, he lays the bulk of the blame on Charles. She's always worn the pants in their relationship, and the king hates confrontation." L&S

William & Kate's CROWN-ING MOMENT

Ready for their close-up? Netflix's sixth and final season of The Crown will include William and Kate's college courtship. The Prince and Princess of Wales first met as students at the University of St Andrews in 2001 — and new images show actors Meg Bellamy and Ed McVey looking the part on campus in Scotland this March. "It is such an honor to be joining the most incredible cast and crew," Meg has raved of her professional screen debut opposite fellow newcomer Ed. "I will strive to do Kate justice."

Here Come the

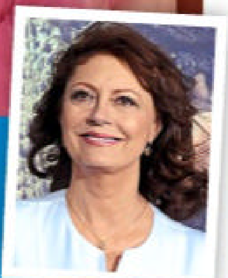
MELANIE BROWN



What Mel B wants, what she really, really wants? For her children — Phoenix, 24, Angel, 15, and Madison, 11 — to be a special part of her big day with hairstylist fiancé Rory McPhee, 36. "The kids adore him," notes a pal, adding that the wedding will take place in the couple's native England. "They're aiming for spring 2024." The 47-year-old's fellow Spice Girls better clear their calendars. "They're all going to be invited," notes the pal. "Mel says she has also asked Victoria Beckham for dress advice!"

SARA BAREILLES

At last! Seven years after Sara was first spotted with Joe Tippett, the pair are tying the knot. "They're eyeing a big wedding in NYC, where they live," spills a source of the Broadway veterans. "It will make it easier with their theater friends' schedules." Don't expect a showy spectacle from the singer bride, 43, and her actor groom, 41, though. "They're keeping the wedding very traditional," says the source. "Formal, but fun."

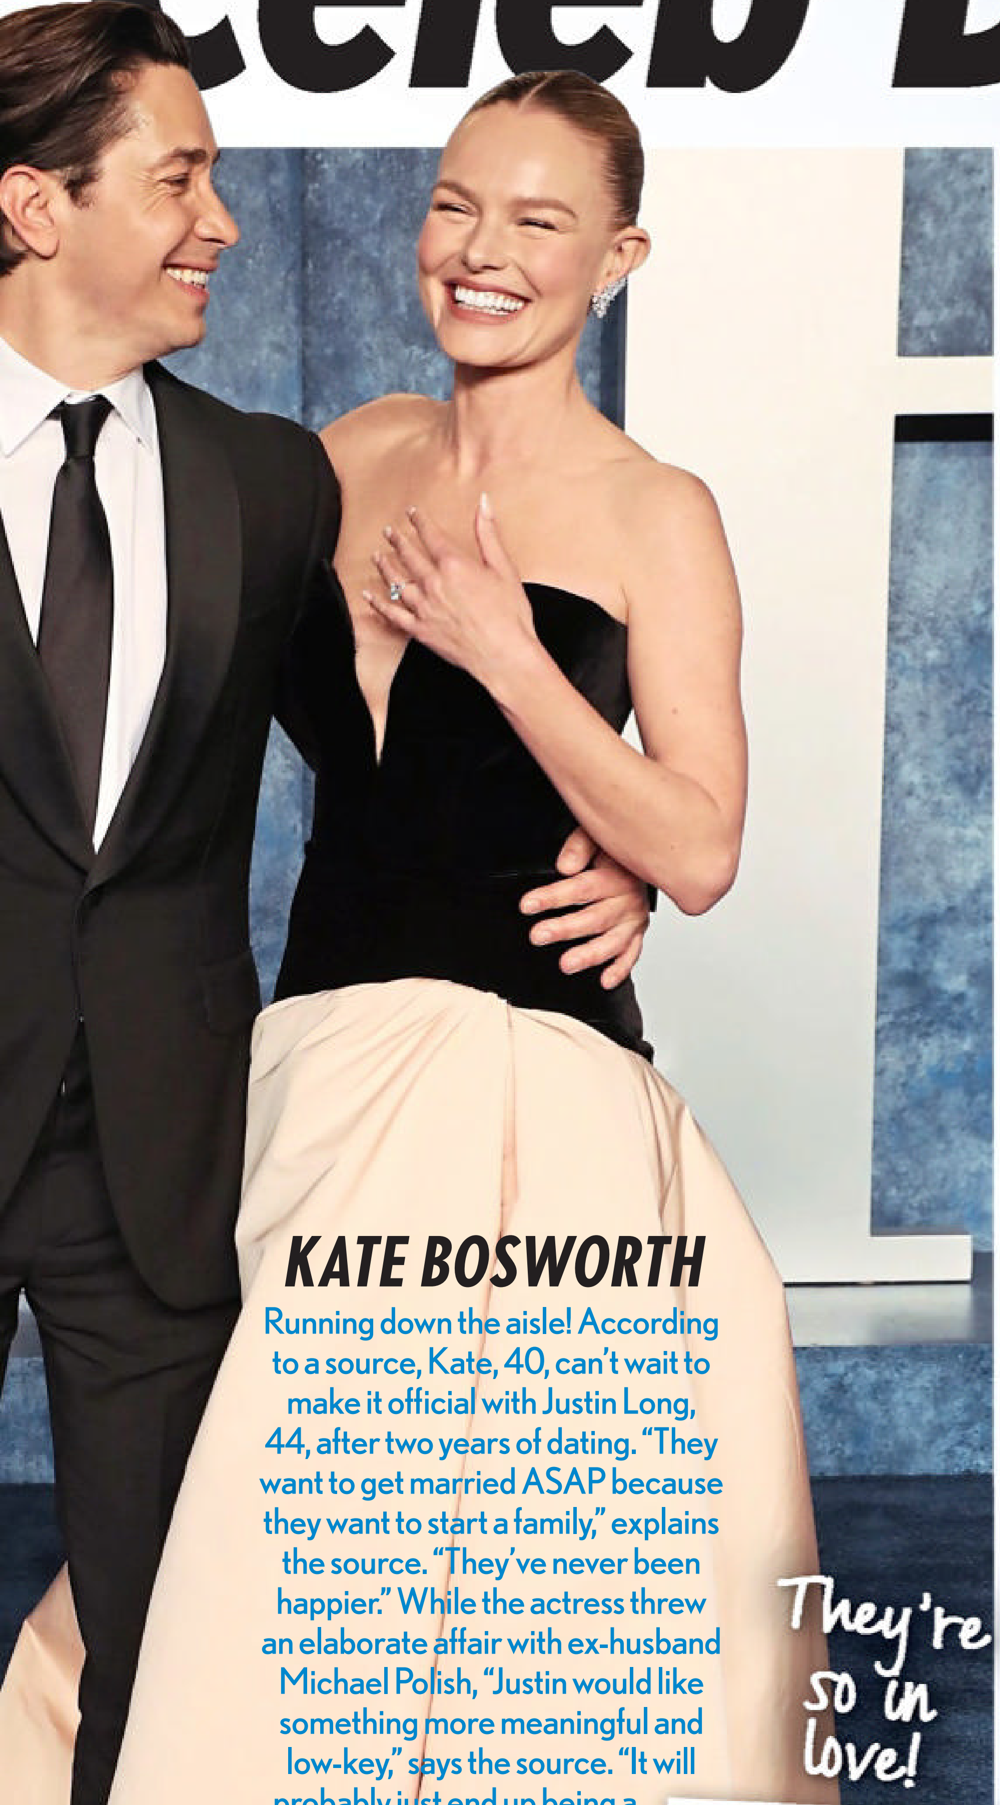


EVA AMURRI

Following a Paris engagement, East Coast "I do"s are in store for Susan Sarandon's daughter Eva and chef fiancé Ian Hock, both 38. "Eva is not letting her mom plan; that's not Susan's style," says an insider. "Susan just wants to be a proud, beaming parent at the wedding." But according to the insider, the 76-year-old may end up contributing something borrowed to the nuptials: "Eva's considering wearing a look from her mother's archives for the reception!"

Celeb Brides!

Break out the champagne! These famous names are getting hitched in true star style...



KATE BOSWORTH

Running down the aisle! According to a source, Kate, 40, can't wait to make it official with Justin Long, 44, after two years of dating. "They want to get married ASAP because they want to start a family," explains the source. "They've never been happier." While the actress threw an elaborate affair with ex-husband Michael Polish, "Justin would like something more meaningful and low-key," says the source. "It will probably just end up being a huge party in their backyard!" A note to potential guests: Bring tissues. "They're writing their own vows," says the source. "Kate and Justin can't stop gushing about each other and want everyone to know how they feel."

They're so in love!

CHRISTINA HENDRICKS

It will be a star-studded celebration when the actress weds camera operator George Bianchini. "Expect everyone from her Mad Men co-stars — January Jones, Alison Brie and Jon Hamm — to Kat Dennings, Neil Patrick Harris and Rachael Leigh Cook," says an insider. "They've sent out 'save-the-dates,' written their own vows and have the menu set." As for her dress? The insider says Christina, 47, is torn between wearing Christian Siriano and Zac Posen. "She'll probably end up donning one for the ceremony and one for the reception!"

Chef's Kiss

As a foodie, this celebrity no doubt adores the home's huge kitchen, with its double ovens, five-burner stovetop, sink-equipped island and two dishwashers. Perhaps she and her actor-musician fiancé, 29, will invite former co-stars like Cole Sprouse, Jennifer Lawrence and Victoria Justice over for a jubilant feast?

Shooting for the Moon...

This 25-year-old exploded onto the Hollywood scene in 2016's X-Men: Apocalypse. But since then, she's become somewhat of a Netflix darling – headlining three teen flicks and a spooky series, plus doing voiceover work, on the popular streaming service!

A Beautiful Symbol of Your Faith

Your faith assures you that the Lord will always be there for you, especially during difficult times. Now a dazzling ring available exclusively from The Bradford Exchange lets you wear this promise throughout your day. Introducing the "Footprints in the Sand" Diamond Cross Ring, inspired by the beloved poem of the same name and featuring the Christian symbol believers hold dear. Hand-crafted of solid sterling silver plated with 18K gold and platinum, the ring showcases a beautiful diamond-encrusted cross at the center, framed with even more diamonds — a total of over 20 in all. The multiple split-shank design suggests the gentle curve of waves; one shank has a single set of footprints against the 18K-gold plating as a poignant reminder of God's presence. Engraved inside the band are the powerful words It was then I carried you. Your jewelry arrives in a custom presentation box with a Certificate of Authenticity and an inspirational card printed with the cherished poem.
